CHINA WILL DEVOTE U. S. BOXER FUND TO SCHOOLS

Balance Of Indemnity For Educational And Cultural Uses

SIZE SENDS NOTE

Board, With American Member, To Formulate Plan

(Reuter's American Service) Washington, June 27.—The Chinese Government will devote the funds resulting from remission by the United States of the balance of the Boxer Indemnity to further educational and cultural purposes, paying special attention to scientific requirements, Minister Sze has informed Secretary Hughes.

The Minister's communication was in reply to one from the Secretary informing him that the President has signed the joint resolution approved at the close of the last session of Congress authorizing the President, in his discretion, to remit to China, the balance of the Boxer indemnity, such remission to begin as from October 1, 1917.

The correspondence was made public tonight, Minister Sze expressing the thanks of his people and Government for this signal proof of American friendship for China. Recalling that the first remission by the American Government in 1908 enabled the Chinese Government to devote the annual payments of the indemnity, thus set free, to educational purposes, he said that the results of the experiment had convinced his Government of the wisdom of the step.

"It is the purpose of the Chinese Government," he added, "to continue the policy with the further payments remitted by the present act of the American Government with such modifications as experience and the demands of the times may dictate. As the demand for scientific education has in recent years been increasingly urgent in China, my Government now proposes to devote the funds thus made available by the generosity of the American Government to educational and cultural purposes, paying special attention to scientific requirements. Moreover, it is the intention of my Government to instruct the administration of the funds to a board which shall be composed of Chinese and American citizens as members and also to avail itself of the services of experts on working out the details along the lines indicated. Upon the formulation of some definite plan, I shall take pleasure in laying it before you for your consideration."

MAN WHO HELD POLICE AT BAY GETS JAIL TERM

Housebreaking Charge Is Dismissed; Accused Believed Insane

Wong Tong-yuen, the intrepid Chinese Alpinist who held the combined forces of the police and fire departments at bay with bricks and roof tiles for three hours in the West Hongkong district last week and was finally brought to earth with a shot-gun, was brought into the Mixed Court yesterday, when the original house-breaking charge against him was dismissed and he was given three months for injuring police officers and pedestrians and for partially demolishing the roof of No. 1189 Boone Road—the roofing material being used by the accused to repulse his pursuers.

The amended charges brought against Wong yesterday were as follows: Assaulting and injuring Inspector J. W. Prince; assaulting and injuring Constable L. Myers; injuring two Chinese women, who were hit by tiles, and damaging the roof and structure of No. 1189 Boone Road. Evidence similar to that given last week was repeated by Inspector Mackenzie, who stated that in consequence of a report received the police engaged in the pursuit of a man, believed to be an armed robber, over the roofs of the block opposite the station. Inspector Prince, who was hit on the head with a brick, and Constable Myers, whose nose was badly cut by a flying tile, also gave evidence as to the chase. Detective Sergeant Malone testified to witnessing the shotgun and finally wounding the accused, who rolled off the roof and was captured.

Inspector Mackenzie told the Court that while the Chinese doctors were reluctant to give an opinion as to the mental condition of the defendant, Dr. McKinstry had given it as his opinion that the man was insane.

The householder from 44 Haining Road testified that on the evening in question he had met the accused coming up the back stairs of his home. He questioned the intruder but the latter did not answer and proceeded up to the roof, whereupon the witness went to the police station and reported the occurrence.

The accused then gave his statement. He was formerly, he said, a soldier at Nanking. Ten days previous to his arrest he came to Shanghai, having been asked to go to Canton to join the Southern army. There was delay in the shipment of recruits and he ran out of funds and could not even get enough money to return to Nanking, though he tried to get work as a coolie here. On the night of the shooting he went to 44 Haining Road and asked permission of the tenant to sleep on the drying stage on the roof that night.

"I even went down on my knees to beg permission to be allowed to sleep there," he told the Court. He went on to say that he sometimes "got confused" in his mind and "fell down to the ground unconscious." While he was on the roof, he declared, he shouted to the police that he would come down, but perhaps they had not heard him. He had become confused because so many people were trying to arrest him.

"I throw the tiles," he concluded, "because I am neither a robber nor a thief."

Assessor Whitmore and Magistrate Sze ruled that the house-breaking charge should be dismissed but that the accused should go to jail for three months on the other charges and thereafter should be expelled from the Settlement.

Kwantung Torn By Local Warfare As Inhabitants Strive To Resist Demands Of Military Tax Leeches; Sun Considering Sale Of Government Land To Raise Fund For Army

(Reuter's Pacific Service) Canton, July 22.—Neither Dr. Sun Yat-sen's nor General Chen Chiung-ming's followers have been able to make any headway against one another during the last two months. General Chen appears to be satisfied with the territory he now holds, while Dr. Sun is unable to make any further advance owing to lack of financial support. The

ROBBER SUSPECTS NOW ARE FACING MURDER CHARGE

Two Of Gang Accused Of Shooting Two Policemen

Charges of the murder and attempted murder of Chinese policemen were brought in the Mixed Court yesterday against two of seven armed robber suspects rounded up by Chief Detective Inspector Crickshank and his squad a few days ago. These two men, it is declared, are the sole surviving members of the gang which fired at Mr. M. O. Springfield and other police officers in the recent Bubbling Well fracas, when two robbers were killed and another was captured. The police yesterday also brought five more specific charges of armed robbery against the accused. A woman is included among the suspects.

Chief Inspector Crickshank told Assessor Martin and Magistrate Zau that since their arrest, members of the band had admitted certain robberies and that identifications had been made by witnesses of several of their raids. The last and most serious robbery charged against them occurred at 141 Nanking Road on June 30, when C.P.C. 770 was shot and killed and C.P.C. 1103 was wounded. The men charged with the murder and attempted murder, the Chief Inspector declared, are the two remaining members of the Bubbling Well Road gang.

The other robberies charged took place at 6 Hankow Road on June 3, when $260 was stolen; at 768 Fokien Road, June 3, when $397 was stolen; at 390 Taku Road and at 1869 Sinza Road on June 5, when a total of $710 was secured.

The Court ordered the case remanded for a special hearing, the accused to be represented by counsel.

Tenants' Body Here Plan Demonstration Against High Rents

A demonstration against excessive rents is planned for Friday, August 1, by the Shanghai Tenants' Association, according to an article appearing in yesterday's Shanghai Journal of Commerce, a translation of which is on file at police headquarters.

The Association held a meeting on Sunday at the Ninpo Fellow-Province Club Association headquarters at which approximately 100 were present. Dr. Chung Sung, who presided, declared that rents in Shanghai were too high and urged all organizations here to sign an appeal to landlords and officials. The demonstration on Friday is to take the form of a parade, which will proceed to the various official yamens in the vicinity of Shanghai to make a final appeal for regulation of rents.

abler and more influential commanders on both sides are helping themselves to the strips of land they are supposed to be defending, and the fighting in Kwantung latterly has been between these bandit-troops and the local inhabitants, who are resisting further illegal military taxes. There have also been quarrels amongst rivals in Sun's army, who are scrambling for larger spheres of influence or more lucrative offices. Kwantung's sufferings are not only those caused by the floods, but also by the disorganized, undisciplined, greedy and unfed troops, whom their Commander-in-Chief has not been able to support since July 7.

Dr. Sun, however, has the advantage of General Chen in possessing Canton and some 19 districts around the city, while the Cantonese army under one of Sun's loyal commanders claims to hold Land in Canton is worth more than that at Waichow, and other cities, occupied by General Chen. Dr. Sun is considering the sale of the last piece of large Government property, but it is doubtful whether he will receive a good price for it. He is offering for sale the compound of the Judicial Department, which contains the supreme, high and district courts of Canton, and also the garden and buildings now used as the Kwantung Library. He calculates that he will get $500,000 for the first and $300,000 for the second sale.

East and South-Western Kwantung is still under the control of General Chen's followers. He has established judicial courts within his sphere of influence and is assuming every function of government, not neglecting, of course, the duty of taxation. The Yunnanese mercenaries, nominally under Dr. Sun, have established themselves in Canton and the vicinity, along the North River and in cities around Sheklung near the mouth of the East River. The Hunanese mercenaries and others are located around Sheklung and Peking, east of Canton.

DOLLAR WORLD SHIPS FAVORED M'CARTHY FINDS

Head Of Passenger Department Returns From Tour Of South

The around-the-world steamship service inaugurated by the Dollar Steamship Line is steadily gaining in favor, particularly in the South, according to Mr. George J. McCarthy, head of the passenger departments of the Dollar Steamship Line and the Admiral-Oriental Line, who returned to Shanghai yesterday aboard the President McKinley after a tour of the South which occupied three and one-half months and took him as far as India.

Mr. McCarthy, during his travels, visited Java, the Straits Settlements, Ceylon, India, Burma, Siam, Indo-China, Manila and Hongkong. Mrs. McCarthy, who had accompanied him during the earlier portion of his travels, returned to Shanghai from Singapore about a month ago.

The Dollar round-the-world service is meeting with favor with passengers and shippers everywhere, Mr. McCarthy said yesterday. Regular winter and spring bookings are now being made throughout the South, and there is every indication to assure a duplication of the heavy passenger business done last season. Full passenger lists will be the rule, he stated, as the travelling public has been won over to the new ships.

Mr. McCarthy also reports that the freight situation as regards the new service is extremely promising. Good cargoes are being obtained in the South, and shippers and passengers alike have shown a real appreciation of the regularity of the service, the seven round-the-world ships adhering strictly to schedule.

(Reuter's American Service) Buenos Aires, July 26.—The evacuation of Sao Paulo by non-combatants which was ordered by the besting Federal troops, is being delayed owing to paucity of transport facilities. FRANCE AND BELGIUM IN 'ENERGETIC REFUSAL' TO TAKE TROOPS FROM RUHR

Premiers Quickly Reject Suggestion From Mr. MacDonald Looking To Abandonment Of Military Occupation In Exchange For Acceptance Of First Committee's Report On Defaults; Australian Senator Submits Proposal

(Reuter's Service) Paris, July 27.—The Petit Parisien learns from London that Mr. MacDonald suggested that if M. Herriot and M. Theunis accepted the proposal to give up military occupation of the Ruhr immediately, the report of the first committee concerning defaults would be passed without difficulty. M. Herriot and M. Theunis refused the suggestion most energetically.

The Australian, Senator McIntosh, interviewed by Le Matin, suggested that the French Government should call to Paris prominent politicians of the British Dominions in order to explain to them the vital necessities which compelled France to occupy the Ruhr.

(Reuter's Service) London, July 26.—The jurists at the Allied Conference have completed their report regarding the terms of the invitation to Germany. The Conference will consider the report on Monday when it will decide the question of inviting Germany.

The delegates today went to the Spithead Naval review, the first Fleet concentration since the Armistice. There were 193 ships as compared with 205 at the King's review in 1914, but the difference in composition was remarkable. There were 10 battleships, 1 battlecruiser and 9 cruisers today as compared with 55 battleships, 4 battlecruisers and 55 cruisers. On the other hand there were 88 destroyers as compared with 56 and there were also several new classes of ships, including 27 mine-sweepers and 2 aircraft-carriers of which there were none in 1914 and also numerous submarine minelayers and seaplanes. This is the first post-war mobilisation of the reserve fleet for ten days' service at sea. The Atlantic Fleet joined it for the review.

A picturesque part of the review was the acrobatics of naval aeroplanes of various types, three of which escorted the Royal Yacht when it left Portsmouth conveying the King and the Prince of Wales. The yacht was preceded and followed by Trinity and Admiralty yachts and guest ships with the Duke of Connaught, Admiralty officials, the Allied Conference delegates, Cabinet Ministers and Members of Parliament. She steamed through five miles of warships gallily dressed and with the crews cheering and the guns firing salutes. Thousands lined the shores.

The representative met the ship as specified, and found that the first class cabin taken by Zau was locked. While he was pondering the situation the third accused, Tsung, came forward with the keys to the cabin and suitcase. When the cabin was entered the suitcase was found to have been opened and only G$6,500 of the money remained therein.

The victimised firm immediately started investigations and as a result the custodian of the funds was found in a teashop in Hong-kow and the other accused was also located and brought to the police station.

Detective Sub-Inspector Yorke told the Court that he took the first and second accused to the ship, where the third accused was still located. The two prisoners were handcuffed, but as soon as they came into the presence of the third accused Zau told this man not to talk. Previous to this, the police officer said, Zau had told him that if the third accused were arrested the whole matter would be cleared up.

There was a question of jurisdiction to be considered, Sub-Inspector Yorke said. The money had been stolen either at Kobe or on the vessel in the river here. The police left it to the Court to decide this point.

Mr. W. S. Fleming, appearing to prosecute, submitted that the offense was a continued one, the money having been put on board at Kobe. Undoubtedly it had been brought ashore here, the suitcase had been found in the possession of the third accused. The Court stated that in its opinion the case was one necessitating a special hearing.

Mr. Sellet, who appeared for the accused, asked that bail be allowed. This the Court denied, and the case was remanded for special hearing, to be set down, if possible, within the next ten days.

People Of Foochow Urge Retention Of Governor

(China Press Correspondence) Foochow, July 22.—Today no one subject is exciting more serious thought on the part of those interested in the progress of political events, than the question as to whether or not Foochow is to lose Admiral Sah as Civil Governor. He wired his resignation to Peking about two weeks ago. This was the result of the humiliation caused by the entirely inexcusable and unwarranted arrest of some members of his body guard by the police of the 2nd precinct. Undoubtedly there were other reasons for his resignation such as his inability to accomplish anything without the consent and sanction of the militarists. Another thing that has been humiliating to the Governor is the fact that quite recently, as reported, the Peking Government issued a mandate in regard to Fukien affairs, in which it was ordered that in the future General Sun Ch'un-fang should use the character "ling" in communications to Sah and Chou while the two latter should use the character "ch'eng" in addressing Sun. This was equivalent to degrading Sah, who hitherto has been on an equality with Sun.

Admiral Sah, in addition to being highly respected by foreigners of all nationalities, has been and is very popular with the people, who feel that in him they have a man in whom self-aggrandizement has no place whatever. No sooner did the people learn of his resignation than they flooded Peking with telegrams urging his retention. At first Chou, having hopes that the civil-governorship would come to him in addition to his military post, kept perfectly still. As soon, however, as it became apparent that should Sah leave, the position would be assumed by Sun in addition to his position as Kwangtung-Fukien Border Defence Commissioner, Chou at once telegraphed Peking, urging, with all his might, the retention of Sah as Civil Governor.

A most significant circumstance in the situation is the fact that, in spite of the numerous telegrams sent to the Government by all classes of people and by the various guilds and organizations, urging Sah's retention, up to the 21st, not a single answer had been received. This is so contrary to what has become practically the established custom of the Government, to meet with repeated refusal the repeated requests to be allowed to retire, that one is inclined to ask if, after all, the Government could ever have received the telegrams sent.

Report says that Sah gave up his seat to Sun on the morning of the 21st. It is felt that a change in the civil governorship will result in numerous and important changes not only in Foochow itself but in many places throughout the province. And there are those who think that all this will work for the much-desired unification of the province. It doubtless will produce such a unification as existed in the days of Li Hou-chi when the military power held high sway and civil authority took second place—the same situation as has existed ever since the Revolution of 1911. Should Sah retire, there will be a clean sweep of all Fukienese now holding office no matter how lowly that office may be.

A change in governorship will affect the heads of most of the Departments in Foochow City and all the civil offices throughout the province. It is estimated that 2,000 will be thrown out of office. The Finance Commissioner, Ch'en Pei-kun, has been taking a holiday and has asked for an extension of leave, in view of what now appears imminent—the withdrawal of Sah. The Min Hou magistrate has already resigned twice, and so, to be relieved of the burdens of his office, is exactly what he desires. And so the impending change may be a relief to not a few officials, but to the people it will mean the loss of a friend and true patriot. It is to be hoped that in some way Admiral Sah may yet be retained as Civil Governor of Fukien.

In continuation of my news report sent yesterday, I now have to report that the political situation has changed during the last twenty-four hours. It now seems fairly certain that Admiral Sah will remain Civil Governor of Fukien. The Central Government, realizing that the position was sought after by both Sun and Chou and not wishing to offend either of the two, decided that neither one should have it, and on the 22nd a telegram was received from the Peking Government urging Sah to remain in his position and thus save the situation. As this is a military government when the three names appear together the order is to be Sun, Chou and Sah but the mandate authorizing Sun to use the character "ling" when addressing the other two is not to be carried out. It is understood Sah has consented and the people are satisfied with the outcome.

PEARL EXHIBIT, HELD IN LONDON ATTRACTS MANY

Instructive Display Shown By Goldsmiths & Silversmiths Company

London, July 1.—On Monday, June 25, there was opened for a week a most fascinating display of wonderful pearls by the Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Company of 112 Regent Street. Various cases showed the phases in the life of a pearl until, having been weighed and its shape and tinting appraised, it is valued by a numerical calculation based on these three qualities and strung with pearls which harmonize in shape and color. Visitors were able to examine various grades of ornaments, from necklets composed of little seed pearls and worth only a few pounds, to a wonderful necklace valued at £50,000, the pearls of which are exceptionally large and exquisitely tinted with rose. There was a collection of loose pearls of quaint and peculiar shapes—owing to the fact that they were formed in the shell and not in the flesh of the oyster they are consequently of comparatively small value—and the visitor saw, too, a large rose-tinted pearl, perfectly shaped, which is worth £8,000.

The method of gradually acquiring a valuable ornament by the addition of one pearl at a time to a platinum chain will appeal to those who cannot afford to pay the price of a costly necklace. Various specimens were shown, illustrating the natural process which mystified ancient scholars and gave rise to so many beautiful legends, were contrasted and with bunches of pearls strung on silk, bound and sealed as they reach London from the various markets of the world.

Subtle differences are discernible between the pearls of the Red Sea and India, of Ceylon and Australia, while examples of the Scotch article and the Panama or black pearl were shown.

Russ Soldier Causes Row In Soviet Offices Here

Considerable disturbance was occasioned in the offices of the Centrosojus (England), 14 Klukiang Road, yesterday morning, when a crippled Russian soldier, enraged because Mr. R. J. Ellender, Soviet representative in Shanghai, refused to accede to his demands for money, attempted to attack Mr. Ellender and other employees of the office, and swinging out with his crutch, succeeded in breaking several window panes and otherwise damaging the office. An alarm was turned into Central police station by employees of the Soviet office, and Superintendent Aiers and a force of uniformed men responded. The soldier, whose name is B. Bekker, was taken into custody and will be charged in the Mixed Court today with creating a disturbance. According to officials of the Soviet office, the man, "Red" claims to have been in the "Red" armies and who has suffered the amputation of the leg, has been travelling Soviet representative, both here and in Peking, for some time past. He came to Shanghai some months ago and applied at the local Soviet office for a passport visa to enable him to go to Singapore. This the officials were unable to grant him, but they offered to repatriate him in Vladivostok.

He refused to be repatriated. The Soviet officials say and since early in May has been calling at the offices here, demanding money to go to Harbin. These demands have been refused.

The offices of the Centrosojus are in the same suite on the fifth floor of 14 Klukiang Road, as are those of Mr. Ellender. In an adjoining suite are the offices of the Russian Volunteer Fleet. Yesterday morning, Bekker, so the Soviet officials say, again visited the offices and demanded to see Mr. Ellender. He began to create a disturbance, and when Mr. Ellender saw him, he advised Bekker to leave the offices, saying that his demand for money could not be complied with. The man then became abusive and attempted to strike Mr. Ellender. Failing in this, he seized his crutch and began flourishing it in the air, with the result that several window panes were broken and other damage done.

In the meantime, the alarm had been sent in to the police, and, with the arrival of Superintendent Aiers and his party, Bekker was taken into custody. Every place is covered with mud. The condition is worse than that in Kunyichuang.

"According to the statement of the villagers, the trees they anchored along the dyke kept Futsun and Mantsum from total destruction, otherwise the two villages would have been washed out like Shakiachang.

"Kungyichuang is about 3 li from the break. More than 100 rooms were either destroyed or washed out. The streets are covered with mud about three feet deep. "The conditions in Chaochuang and Sichangtaun are reported not so serious though lots of houses were destroyed and streets buried in mud."

More towns and districts are reported to have been affected, the following being a summary of the reports: Twentienchen—Torrential rain made the Hwenho burst through its dyke. All the villages in the south-eastern vicinity were inundated. There was a considerable loss of life. Relief is being given by the Metropolitan authorities.

Yungching—Incessant rainfall inundated all those villages lying in the low area. The water pouring in due to the break in the south-dyke of the Yung Ting Ho, made the Chungtingho rise so rapidly that it burst through its dyke at Hsinanchen. Over 20 villages south of Hsinanchen are seriously affected. There was a considerable loss of houses, cattle and property.

Hainpaoan—Excessive rains inundated the low-lying area of the district. The over-flow of the Tungfahho caused the Yangho in the south of the city rise so rapidly that the reclaimed land along both sides of the latter river was washed out. So far 100 casualties were buried by the Red Cross Society.

Lahsen—Torrential rainfall caused nine breaks in the dykes at Shwahu Chungseifu, and Tichali along the Chulungho, and at Koolingshan, Pehchun, Pehpuwan, and Tsaiwangchung along the Tanguho. The widths of the breaks vary from 20 feet to over 100 feet. Many houses were destroyed and cattle and property washed away. Crops were inundated. The number of casualties is under investigation.

Yungching—Incessant rainfall inundated all those villages lying in the low area. The water pouring in due to the break in the south-dyke of the Yung Ting Ho, made the Chungtingho rise so rapidly that it burst through its dyke at Hsinanchen. Over 20 villages south of Hsinanchen are seriously affected. There was a considerable loss of houses, cattle and property.

Hainpaoan—Excessive rains inundated the low-lying area of the district. The over-flow of the Tungfahho caused the Yangho in the south of the city rise so rapidly that the reclaimed land along both sides of the latter river was washed out. So far 100 casualties were buried by the Red Cross Society.

Lahsen—Torrential rainfall caused nine breaks in the dykes at Shwahu Chungseifu, and Tichali along the Chulungho, and at Koolingshan, Pehchun, Pehpuwan, and Tsaiwangchung along the Tanguho. The widths of the breaks vary from 20 feet to over 100 feet. Many houses were destroyed and cattle and property washed away. Crops were inundated. The number of casualties is under investigation.

Every place is covered with mud. The condition is worse than that in Kunyichuang. "According to the statement of the villagers, the trees they anchored along the dyke kept Futsun and Mantsum from total destruction, otherwise the two villages would have been washed out like Shakiachang.

"Kungyichuang is about 3 li from the break. More than 100 rooms were either destroyed or washed out. The streets are covered with mud about three feet deep. "The conditions in Chaochuang and Sichangtaun are reported not so serious though lots of houses were destroyed and streets buried in mud."

More towns and districts are reported to have been affected, the following being a summary of the reports: Twentienchen—Torrential rain made the Hwenho burst through its dyke. All the villages in the south-eastern vicinity were inundated. There was a considerable loss of life. Relief is being given by the Metropolitan authorities.

Captain and Miss Aloha Wanderwell, who are travelling round the world, arrived in Hongkong July 24 on board the British India steamer Takada from Calcutta, without any noisy demonstrations or displays of enthusiasm by amateur reception committees. In a chat with a representative of the S.C.M. Post, Capt. He set out with a letter of introduction from Mr. Henry Ford to his agents in all parts of the world and his sister and himself have now travelled many more countries than any other unit, though he believed there was one which had gone farther than them in mileage. Commalle and Ward opened the innings slowly. After 40 minutes, when the score was 29 for 1 wicket, there was a twenty minutes' interruption for rain. Tsao Kun's Braves Kill Constable, Hurt Another In Peking Brothel Brawl

Merchants And Police Demand Severe Punishment Of President's Body Guards; Sing Song Girls To Erect Memorial For Dead

Peking's crime wave came to a climax on Saturday when over a dozen grey-uniformed body-guards of President Tsao Kun killed a police constable, injured another, wrecking a second class brothel at Hu Sheng Miao. Below is a translation of a report carried by the Shanghai Tribune on the tragedy:

The special guards stationed at the Presidential Palace indicated a fatal wound on one policeman and seriously injured another in the early hours of the day before yesterday. Since the case concerns the peace and order of Peking and the dignity of the president as well as the progress of police efficiency, it has the greatest significance and has attracted the attention of the entire Peking populace as well as the whole nation.

Shortly after five o'clock in the morning, over a dozen grey-uniformed soldiers with red peaked caps (Tsao Kun's special uniform for his body guards) appeared at the door of the Sheng Fu Brothel at Hu Sheng Miao. They were accompanied by a "lingchao" or waiter, who knocked the door. When the door was opened, the gang rushed into the house in disorder, gagged the gate-keeper and rammed 11 out of the 12 rooms of the house with bayonets, daggers, rods, steel whips and other weapons. Save the one whose occupant managed to bolt the doors so strongly that the invaders could not break open, not one solitary article escaped undamaged.

As the law-breakers were about to leave the premises, Chao Sih-mien, a police constable on duty entered to find what was the trouble. He was immediately pounced upon by the braves and assaulted and was lying in a pool of blood and unconscious when the soldiers retreated. Another policeman, a sergeant named Ma Wen-yuan came in, saw the situation and gave chase to the criminals. As the latter crossed the Chienmen Bridge, they noticed the presence of Ma. Turning back, they knocked him down and left him.

Meanwhile, a number of rich coolies and detectives in plain clothes had gathered and were following the offenders, who took refuge in a shop next to an entrance of the Presidential Palace. Five minutes later, three car-load full of policemen made a search of the shops and found various forms of blood stained weapons. The owner of the shop was taken into custody, but the offenders were not arrested. Later, a dagger was discovered in the brothel.

WOUND WAS FATAL
The constable, Chao Sih-mien, was taken to hospital where the doctors held out no hope for him because both the lungs and intestines had been punched. He died a few moments later. The inquest conducted by the Peking procurator returned a verdict that death was caused by a severe wound inflicted in the left back region of the thorax.

The injuries received by Sergeant Ma, though not serious, were caused by an iron instrument over the left ear. Following the death of the constable, members of the entire force of the Second Police Station, to song girls of the eight Hutung's are now raising a fund for the erection of a memorial tablet in his honor.

Meanwhile, the culprits are still at large, another report says.

CHINESE PRESS DISCUSSES PLANS TO HALT CRIME

Volunteer Patrols Urged To Check Armed Robberies

Suggested schemes for combating the prevalence of crime and armed robbery, in particular, in Shanghai, continue to occupy a prominent place in the vernacular newspapers.

Most of the plans suggest the organization by the various street unions of volunteer patrol forces, or the employment by them of "special constables" to assist the police in the enforcement of the laws against carrying fire-arms.

The Chekiang Road Street Union, according to the Shanghai Journal of Commerce, has asked the acting Commissioner of Police for permission for 100 volunteers to patrol North and South Chekiang Roads with a view to making the vicinity robber-proof. This follows the scheme advanced by Yuan Lu-tung and Yih Wei-chun for the organization of a special volunteer constabulary force among the merchants.

The Shun Pao reports that a meeting of the Kwangse Road Street Union was held on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. At this meeting, Zung Chi-hsiung, who had represented the Union at the conference on crime prevention held recently by the Deputy Commissioner of Police, gave his report of that meeting. He urged upon those present the necessity of reporting all suspicious characters in their neighborhoods, and said that if such reports were received the "intelligence section" of the Union would investigate.

Feelings also ran high among the public organizations. Many inquiries are being daily made with the second police station about the development of the case, all being anxious to see the culprit brought to law. In fact the case is now the prize topic of the whole city. There is absolutely no excuse for the Peking authorities to allow the soldiers to commit such serious offences. They could easily administer the required discipline. Unless just punishment is meted out for the culprits to show that no favoritism was being shown to Tsao Kun's braves, it is difficult to estimate what the consequence and reaction will be.

The Chamber of Commerce has invited all the public organizations in Peking to participate in a memorial service to be held there shortly in honor of Constable Chao Sih-mien. It has also been suggested to repeat the memorial service every year on the day of his death. The singing girls of the eight Hutung's are now raising a fund for the erection of a memorial tablet in his honor.

Meanwhile, the culprits are still at large, another report says.

Keds are made of firm, finely woven canvas. The soles are of tough, durable rubber. They are always well shaped—the details of finishing are done with skill learned by years of experience. Be sure you get real Keds and not a substitute for Keds.

If the name KEDS is not on the shoes, they are not real Keds.

them: He also urged the plan for the appointment of special constables to assist in the suppression of crime.

According to the Sin Wen Pao, the Shanghai Nippon, a Japanese newspaper, reports that the Japanese Consulate-General is preparing to deal sternly with all arms smugglers brought before the Consular Court. Hitherto, Japanese accused of smuggling arms have been charged under the civil statutes, which permit punishment of not longer than 29 days' confinement. Now, however, the Nippon reports, persons accused of such crimes are to be charged under the criminal code, which permits a maximum punishment of a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for two years for those found guilty.

RESORT SEASON IS UNDER WAY AT KIKUNGSHAN

Visitors Are Attracted To Hills In Honan Province

(By Our Own Correspondent)

Kikungshan (Honan), July 23.—The season at Kikungshan opened auspiciously with a spell of several weeks' fine weather and the mountain looked its best. Some visitors who came to the hill for the first time this year expressed delight at the beautiful green shrubs and flowers that cover the hills in such profusion; they had expected a bare rocky landscape and were pleasantly surprised.

The last two weeks, no doubt owing to the heavy rains in the north and south, the mountains have been enveloped in a mist, and the thermometer has been as low as 62°. The tennis courts have been greatly improved, and, with the bathing pool, have been well patronized.

A splendid series of Bible exhibitions conducted by Dr. Evans from America drew large audiences to the Assembly Hall. We have had many such teachers on Kikungshan in past years but few have been more appreciated than Dr. Evans.

On July 4 at the Independence Day celebration the community had the pleasure of hearing Mr. L. H. Evans. Like his father, he is a gifted speaker. He dwelt at length on the horrors of war and its tremendous cost. He pointed out that the only solution for the problems now perplexing the nations was for them to follow the principles laid down by our Lord Jesus Christ.

The following program was rendered:

1. Hymn—"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord."
2. Bible reading and prayer by Rev. D. W. Herring.
3. Vocal Selection—"America the Beautiful"—by Messrs. Anderson, Skiptada, Colberg, Ronning, Granskan and Larson.
4. Address—Mr. L. H. Evans.
5. Instrumental Selection—Saxophone, cornet and trombone.
6. Drill—By Girls of American School.
7. Male Sextette—"Masses in the cold, cold ground."

The vacation school opened on June 20 with an attendance of 88 children. Last year the school began with 56 and closed with an attendance of 112. This year a much larger increase is expected. A concert is given each Wednesday evening by the community choir. An appreciative audience usually fills the building. Under the able leadership of Mr. Coffey, the choir is now practising each week and expects to render the Cantata, "The Crucifixion," some time next month.

Kikungshan has never been so peaceful or free from alarms as this year. The fact that General Chin has built his home at this resort and now maintains a strong bodyguard certainly gives added security to the Hill.

CHARGE OF INDIAN OPIUM IMPORTS FOUND BASELESS

Foreign Director Of Int'l Association Reports on Conditions

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, July 24.—The following has been issued by the International Anti-Opium Association, Peking:—
"One of the foreign Directors of the International Anti-Opium Association, who has recently made the trip by road from Peking to Jehol, sends the following report on the opium conditions which the party saw on the journey. The report is evidence of two important facts. Firstly, that the Tartar General's knowledge of the export of Indian opium is very ancient, for not a pound of Indian opium has been sent to China since 1924, and, secondly, that one attempt has been made to uproot the opium which the Jehol Inspector General in Peking informed the Waichiaoop had not been planted, he (the General) having enforced measures of total suppression in 1923. The report states:—
Peking, July 22, 1924. To the Hon. Secretary International Anti-Opium Association Peking.
June 22.—After leaving Chihli province and entering the jurisdiction of Jehol, there beside the river at Pei Ying Fang we saw the first field of poppy just coming into bloom. From that point we went by pack animal trails over a pass (into the valley of the Pei Ho, White River, and every farm, almost, had its patch of poppy, from a few plants in the garden to a half mu and up to three mu in a plot, all the way to Jehol. The crop was being harvested and in the most advanced fields the flowers had about all dropped their petals and the men said the harvest would be over in ten days. It was difficult to tell what proportion of the cultivated land was occupied by the poppy but I should now place it at more than a twentieth. Wherever there was fertile soil the brilliant bloom of the poppy was in evidence. Close beside one military station at the town of Hsin Chien, about 80 li from Jehol, there were several mu of the plant.
Parties who went by the main travelled road through Hupeikou to Jehol told me that they did not notice any poppy, but it was impossible to travel through those more remote districts without seeing it constantly.
Men working in the fields said that they heard that inspectors were coming through and that an order had come to pull it all up. They said that near Jehol it had been pulled up already and our observation confirmed it. They also declared that they had been ordered to plant and that they had to pay $7 per mu at the time of planting. Since then they had paid several assessments that went to subordinates. They understood that the first tax went to the Tartar General. Up to that time they had paid about $40 per mu and were liable to have to pay at least once again in harvest time. Still they expected to make a small profit if they were only allowed to harvest the entire crop. They accepted the order and its enforcement as a fate against which it was useless to resist but which they considered most unjust.
In conversation with my friend the Tartar General, he made no disguise of the fact that he had encouraged the planting. His excuse was that after China had stopped the planting in 1917 India sent in millions of the stuff and the country might better raise it herself. He thought the British effort of getting China to stop planting was purely in the interest of her own

FLOOD MENACE IN CANTON, ALSO SOUTHERN INDIA

Dyke Protecting South China Metropolis In Danger Of Breaching

(Reuter's Service)
Canton, July 22.—Reports from the flood area the last few days indicate that the Shek-kok Dyke, by which Canton and the vicinity is protected from water, is in danger. Should it break, Canton would suffer another inundation similar to that of 1915, when the whole western suburb was 7 or 8 feet under water. The police and the merchant volunteer corps are taking precautions and preparing for emergency calls to special service if this misfortune should occur.
Reports from Wuchow, Shuhing, Sanshui, Suiann, Siptong, Fatsan, Szeui, Kohming and other places in the Canton Delta are pessimistic, all showing that the water is still rising. Communication by train between Shek-watong and the Fatsan station of the Canton-Sanshui Railway had to be suspended on July 17 on account of damage to the track by water.
Food relief, as far as immediate aid in the way of supplying food and medicine to the needy is concerned, is being undertaken by the Canton volunteers. The volunteers are going out on their third relief mission, while charitable organizations and the government are endeavouring to raise funds. The merchants have a ready command of food supplies and materials for repairing dykes, and can call on the volunteer corps, which is nearly 13,000 strong, if an emergency should arise.
(Reuter's Service)
Madras, July 27.—Earlier reports in no way minimised the gravity of the devastating floods in Southern India, although particulars are still meagre owing to the breakdown of communications. For example, the railway to Malabar has been cut off since the

U. S. Ship Board O.K.'s New Routes

(Reuter's American Service)
Washington, July 2.—Consolidation of the Government-operated cargo routes from North Atlantic to French ports north of Bordeaux, Antwerp and Rotterdam, as proposed by the Fleet Corporation, was approved today by the Shipping Board.

The two operators in the trade, the Black Diamond Steamship Company and the Cosmopolitan Steamship Company, both of New York will be reduced to one, with the elimination of the former, and the number of ships curtailed from twenty-six to twenty-two.

The consolidation is a further step in the general plan of the Government to effect economies through mergers of such services within the Government's jurisdiction. The Shipping Board's policy of maintaining the existing tonnage in service has been one of the obstacles, it is said, to effecting the Fleet Corporation's consolidation plans. Seven operating companies recently were retained to handle the Government fleet out of Gulf ports.

Finger Prints Now Sent By Telegraph

(Reuter's American Service)
New York, July 3.—Police Commissioner Enright yesterday declared the successful sending by wire of finger-prints from New York to Chicago last Tuesday afternoon constituted one of the greatest advances made in criminal detection in many years. He and officials of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company made known the details of the test whereby finger-prints of two men with reords were conveyed by wire in a few minutes each.

Commissioner Enright and Third Deputy Commissioner Joseph A. Faurot, who was in charge of the police end of the test in this city, pointed out that one of the biggest factors would be a saving of time which would help the police, in view of the reluctance of Magistrates to hold suspects more than forty-eight hours.

SAFEGUARD YOUR CHILDREN Against Hot Weather Ailments By Keeping Baby's Own Tablets In Your Home.

It is foolish to give medicine to children who do not need it. But neglect is dangerous when the little ones show signs of sickness, especially during the hot months, for what appears to be a slight indisposition may rapidly develop into serious or even fatal illness at this time of year.

Most of the ailments of infants and young children arise from disordered stomach and bowels. It is by gently yet efficiently cleansing the bowels and sweetening the stomach that Baby's Own Tablets ward off attacks of cholera infantum, diarrhoea and dysentery, relieve colic, indigestion, cramp and colds, reduce fever. They also alleviate the pains of teething, expel worms, soothe the nerves and quickly bring peaceful sound health restoring sleep in a perfectly natural way.

Baby's Own Tablets are guaranteed free from opiates and narcotics, and can do nothing but good to even the youngest infant. Of chemists, or post free, 60 cents the vial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Klange Road, Shanghai.

No Progress Apparent In Effort To Settle Strike

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, July 24.—News, which reached Peking this morning through the medium of official telegrams, revealed that little, if any, progress had been made towards bringing about a settlement of the Shamen strike. Steps have indeed been taken to send away the women and children from the Concession to Hongkong and elsewhere, and plans are being made to meet possible emergencies.

A meeting between the strikers and the Shamen authorities had been arranged for 6 p.m. on July 21 but the former failed to turn up. However, they sent along a series of demands, one being the unconditional reinstatement of the Shamen police who have joined in the strike. This seems to be one of the thorniest questions standing in the way of a settlement of the dispute.

Yesterday, it is reported, the British and French authorities put into force, as a temporary measure, the restrictions upon Chinese entering the Concession after daylight which were the immediate cause of the trouble. In addition to a public announcement in regard to the measures necessary to be taken in case of an attack upon Shamen, the British Consul-General, at the request of the municipal authorities, forwarded to the Consular body a suggestion that all women and children should be evacuated and this is now being done.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, July 24.—It is reported that a number of Russian tutors have been sent to assist in the operations on the East River and that an order has been issued by Dr. Sun Yat-sen's Headquarters prohibiting publication of information about their movements.

Russian Envoy To Report At Home

(Reuter's Service)

Jutland Battle "Narrative" Out

(Reuter's Service)
London, July 26. The Official "narrative" of the Battle of Jutland has been published. It is based on the despatches of the Admirals and the reports of individual ships and on personal narratives. It includes in the appendix remarks by Admiral of the Fleet Viscount Jellicoe. In accordance with the latter's wish where the appendix differs from the Admiralty narrative. Their Lordships are satisfied that the narrative is more in accordance with the evidence. Viscount Jellicoe contends that the Admiralty text is unjust to Admiral Sir Hugh Evan-Thomas on two occasions and says that the narrative fails to give a true idea of the confusion caused by contradictory reports, the effect of which was felt throughout the action.

One-Piece Carpet Has Become Popular In America

It is reported that China is now supplying about 40 percent of all the carpet wool imported into the United States. In addition, the American carpet industry calls upon such widely dispersed regions as Scotland, Italy, the Argentine, British India and Asia Minor.

"Although American carpet and rug manufacturers depend almost exclusively upon the domestic market for the sale of their fabric, they are, to a conspicuous degree, dependent upon China and other foreign countries for their major raw products," says a report of the National Bank of Commerce, New York City. "For the main constituent of the product, wool, the industry draws upon those lands where most of the sheep are of the so-called 'native type'."

"Partly because of the character of the climate, these unimproved breeds afford strong resilient wools peculiarly adapted to carpet manufacture. Carpet wool is not grown in commercial quantities in America; consequently only a very small portion of American wools is employed in the carpet industry."

CHINESE WOOL LEADS
It is stated that, for all but a few of the last twenty years, the principal source of American carpet wool imports has been China, where, especially on the high plains of North China and Mongolia, there range large flocks of broad-tailed native sheep.

Before the world war, Russia was a factor of importance in the trade, but the Russian influence has progressively declined until today the direct trade with that country is practically non-existent.

Prior to 1904, the United Kingdom was the most important single source of supply of carpet wool for America, due largely to the position of England as a distributing center for Indian and Near East wools. The war effected a marked shift in the American import trade in carpet wools. Customary sources of material in the United Kingdom, the Continent and Asia Minor were restricted, forcing importers and manufacturers to turn to China and other countries.

South American purchases became the outstanding feature of wartime development in the carpet wool import trade. Argentine wools, part of which were low, cross-breeds as distinguished from true, carpet wools, entered into America to a total of 21,300,000 pounds at the peak in 1917 against average takings of 4,200,000 pounds in the years from 1909 to 1913. Imports from Chile made even more phenomenal gains, reaching a high point of 33,000,000 pounds in 1919 as compared with negligible quantities before the war.

Since 1919 China and the United Kingdom have led in supplying the needs of the American carpet industry. The increased amount of wool taken from China in the last two years has been very striking in view of the hazards attendant upon doing business with that country.

ORIENTAL RUGS POPULAR
As an accompaniment to the vogue for hardwood flooring in American homes, and perhaps as a reflection of the growing interest in Oriental and Chinese rug types, there has arisen a strong demand for goods made in one piece. During the mid-Victorian era, American taste did not run in the direction of wide goods. Even at the turn of the century, only about 15 percent of the yardage woven by American mills was seamless rugs. Ten years ago 40 percent of all manufacturers was in rugs woven whole. At the present time over one-half of the output is of the one-piece variety. Last year the United States produced 81,000,000 square yards of carpeting. It is said that the use of roll goods, however, is not likely to be entirely displaced by

SEES A TURN NEAR
IN PAPER MARKET
IN THE U. S. A.Decline in Prices Appears
Close To Its End,
Survey Shows

New York, June 29.—The decline in paper prices seems to be nearing its end. While it is not believed in paper trade circles that an immediate sharp upturn is to be expected and further small cuts may be made in some lines, the position of the industry as a whole is said to warrant the assumption that a fairly substantial recovery should be in evidence at least before the end of the year.

Trade experts are of the belief that the recovery will be most marked in wrapping papers, particularly kraft, which is now selling below the average price of any since 1915, according to a survey by the Standard Trade Service, which states that newsprint and to a lesser extent writing and fine papers should participate in the advance.

The decline in wrapping paper price has reached a point at which even some of the lowest cost companies cannot cover expenses at prevailing levels, says the survey. Kraft paper is now selling at 5.5 cents a pound, the lowest price touched during the 1921 depression was 6.25 cents a pound and the average price for the year was 7.34 cents a pound. Last year's average price was 6.99 cents a pound. At current levels, kraft is 56 percent below the highest price touched in 1920 and 21.3 percent below the 1923 average. Manila jute paper has already turned upward and is selling about half a cent below last year's average due to the advance in jute price.

CURTAIN ON WRAPPING PAPER
Many wrapping paper mills are finding it more profitable to shut down than to operate on the basis of present prices. Curtailment has become general throughout the industry, with many of the larger establishments operating on a four-day week. Slowing up in operations is more significant, it is said, in the paper industry than in many other lines of business, since, owing to large overhead, manufacturers are usually willing to accept orders which contribute something toward fixed charges, even if no profit is realized.

"Although mill stocks of wrapping paper have been gaining of late, there is no evidence of overproduction," according to the survey. "Stocks on May 1 amounted to only about one month's output at rates prevailing during that month."

"But mill stocks constitute only part of the picture. Reserve supplies of paper are usually carried by the middleman rather than by the manufacturer. While no statistical data on jobbers' stocks are available, the trade believes that the wholesaler's supplies are the smallest in years. Buying has been on a hand-to-mouth basis for some time past. As is usual in periods of falling prices, both consumers and distributors have tended to confine their orders to immediate requirements."

"Another encouraging aspect of the situation, as far as the manufacturer is concerned, is the sharp slump in imports of European paper and pulp. Low-priced, duty-free pulp has been one of the severest handicaps of the large American manufacturer, who is usually equipped to manufacture his own raw material."

EUROPEAN PULP IMPORTS FALL
"European pulp, which has been coming into the country in sizable quantities, has been offered here below American costs of production. But with advances in European prices to more competitive levels imports have fallen off sharply. Forty-six percent less sulphite pulp was imported from countries other than Canada in April than in the corresponding month of 1923. Imports of kraft pulp fell off by 54 percent."

The survey finds that American consumers "are clearly turning from European to domestic papers. We believe," it says, "that this tendency will become more marked in the near future. European paper enters this market only when there is a distinct price differential in its favor. Recently some sharp advances have been reported in prices of German papers, which for some time past have been sold in this market at prices generally believed to be below the cost of production.

"Writing paper prices are holding steady around the levels which have prevailed for more than a year. While no immediate advance is likely, we do not believe that quotations will work much lower. Manufacturers have recently been willing to lose business rather than offer substantial concessions. The trend of demand seems to be toward the highest qualities. Increasing use of direct mail advertising has fostered the use of fine writing paper. With stocks relatively low, some slight advance in the prices of the best grades is possible in the near future."

THE NEWSPRINT SITUATION
The newsprint situation, the survey asserts, "though relatively stable so far as the near-term outlook is concerned, is that of some other branches of the paper industry, is not such as to warrant undue pessimism. We question the validity of the assumption that the recent cut in prices from $75 to $73 a ton (forecast in our last analysis) points to a renewal of the long downward trend in prices which began in July, 1920. The cut comes at a time of seasonal dullness in the industry. The new contracts will, generally, be effective only for three months. It seems more likely that the next revision will be upward rather than downward. This assumption rests on the following facts:

"Generally speaking, there is a marked seasonal upward trend in newsprint prices in the Fall. In every year since 1915, with the exception of 1920, the average price of newsprint has been higher in the quarter ended Nov. 30 than in the preceding three months."

"Current mill stocks of newsprint are not large, relative to present consumption. Paper on hand at American and Canadian mills at the end of May was equivalent to only about 5.5 days' production at current rates. Considering that the average time of transit from the manufacturer to the consumer is about three days, this is not a large reserve."

"European prices are advancing and imports of foreign newsprint are on the decline. Only 7,425 tons of newsprint were imported from countries other than Canada in the first four months of 1924, as compared with 16,450 tons in the same period of 1923."

"Thus," concludes the analysis, "it is reasonably clear that a turn in the paper market lies not far ahead. Wrapping paper prices probably will show renewed strength most quickly. We advise consumers to drift with the markets so long as the markets themselves are drifting, thereby keeping in a position to take advantage of any slight further weakness that may occur. But the trends must be followed very closely at this particular time, and with the first demonstration of real strength we advise that conservatively estimated forward orders be placed."

Company

The 15th annual general meeting of the Shanghai Dock & Engineering Company was held in the offices of the Company, 150 Broadway, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Mr. John Prentice, Chairman of the Board of Directors, was in the chair and there was present the full Directorate, consisting of Messrs. P. L. Knight, A. Brooke Smith, H. M. Tibbey, except Mr. W. H. Lester, who is absent on leave. In all 6,443 shares were represented.

The notice convening the meeting having been read, the chairman addressed the shareholders as follows:

"The report and accounts having been in your hands for some days, with your permission, we will take them as read."

"The serious depression in shipping, shipbuilding, etc., continued during the whole year, and, up to the present, there are still no strong signs of improvement."

"Considering the conditions ruling, the result of the year's working may be considered satisfactory."

"The net profit for the year, including the amount brought forward from last year's accounts, after paying all charges and allowing for all known liabilities, amounts to Tls. 647,456.84."

"This amount your Directors recommend to be dealt with as following, viz:

Tls.
"Pay a dividend of Tls. 9 per share (12 percent) absorbing . . . 496,800.00
"Add to depreciation account (bringing it up to Tls. 750,000.00) . . . 52,000.00
"And carry to new account . . . 98,656.84
Total . . . 647,456.84

"We trust these recommendations will meet with your approval."

"We did not think it necessary to add anything to the special reserve fund, which now stands at Tls. 1,250,000."

"Maintenance has, in all departments as usual, been charged to working account."

"The alterations to the Cosmopolitan Dock were still suspended during the year, but as the conditions which caused the suspension are improving, the work will be resumed shortly."

"Before moving the adoption of the reports and accounts, I will be pleased to answer any questions to the best of my ability."

There being no questions, the following resolutions were submitted to the meeting and passed:

"That the Directors' report and statement of accounts made up to April 30, 1924, as printed and circulated, be adopted and passed, and that the Directors be authorized to pay a dividend for the year of Tls. 9 per share to shareholders on the register at date." (Proposed by Mr. Prentice; seconded by Mr. Brooke Smith.)

"That Mr. John Prentice and Mr. H. W. Lester be re-elected Directors of the Company." (Proposed by Mr. Brodie A. Clarke; seconded by Mr. W. Wakeford Cox).

"That Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews be elected auditors of the Company for the current year." (Proposed by Mr. H. Y. Wilkinson; seconded by Mr. J. Mason).

A vote of thanks for the very fine report was then moved by Mr. Brodie A. Clarke, which was seconded by Mr. W. Wakeford Cox. Mr. Prentice replied to this, thanking the shareholders for the vote of confidence, whereupon the meeting adjourned.

German Railways Essential Part Of Reparations Settlement.

IN one of the reports of the London Conference on the German Reparations settlement of last week, it was stated that the new law turning the German State Railways into a private company under Allied control had been drafted and submitted to the Reparations Commission for approval. The new company will be, according to the report, the largest in the world and will have some 700,000 employees.

According to the report of the Dawes Commission, German Railways are to be one of the principal sources for Reparations payments, and in view of the fact that China may some day be forced to adopt a similar procedure in refunding her Government debt, it is of interest to analyse the methods being followed in connection with the settlement of the German Reparations problem.

While the final control of the private company which is being organized to take over from the German Government the entire railway system of the country, will rest with the Allies, the actual operation of the railroads will rest with Germany. International supervision is to extend for a period of fifty years, according to the Dawes report.

The German State railways have a mileage of 39,600 and are valued roughly at 26,000,000,000 gold marks or G.$6,250,000,000. The operating revenues, according to statistics compiled in 1917, amounted to G.$1,114,346,685 while the operating expenses for the same year were G.$924,165,968, which leaves a considerable surplus. Since the internal debts of the roads have been wiped out through the depreciation of the old currency, they will come into the hands of the new company practically unencumbered.

The new company which is being formed to operate the roads will be capitalised by the issue of:

- (1)—11,000,000,000 gold marks in bonds bearing 5 per cent. interest and 1 per cent. amortisation charge.
- (2)—There will be 2,000,000,000 gold marks of preferred stock which will be sold to the public and.
- (3)—13,000,000,000 gold marks of common stock will be issued.
- (4)—The bonds will all be applied to reparations, the proceeds of one-third of the preferred stock will go to the German Treasury and all of the common stock will go to the German Treasury.
- (5)—After the fourth year the reparations fund will receive 660,000,000 gold marks annually from the bonds.

Outside of the German Railways and the ordinary revenues of the German State which are to be pooled for the Reparations account, the final source of income for reparations is to be from a bond issue of 5,000,000,000 gold marks secured by mortgage on corporation properties. The theory of this, according to the Dawes Report, is, as in the case of the railways, that these properties having been freed from debt by the depreciation of the old currency, can afford to carry these bonds which will carry 5 per cent. interest and 1 per cent. for amortisation and still be able to compete with rival industries in other lands. These bonds are figured to yield 300,000,000 gold marks for the reparations funds.

The industrial bonds added to the railway bonds will give a bond issue of 16,000,000,000 gold marks or a little less than G.$4,000,000,000 and thus will supply about 40 per cent. of the average annual payment. Since these bonds are to be amortised at 1 per cent., this means they will be extinguished in 37 years, which would seem to indicate that this might be the limit of all reparations payments, although the Dawes Report carefully avoided making mention of any definite date for the complete payment of the Reparations account. The London Agreement, which the Dawes Plan is supposed to supersede, provided for amortisation of the principal sum at 1 per cent. annually.

As to the amounts which are to be raised from the regular revenues of Germany, the Dawes Committee report recommends that no reparations payments are to be made for two years, but that in the third year a payment of 110,000,000 gold marks is to be made which is increased to 50,000,000 the fourth year and the fifth year the amount is to go to 1,250,000,000 gold marks. This latter payment is to be a "standard" payment and becomes obligatory from that time on with increases determined by a set of indexes intended to relate the increased payments to the state of general prosperity and tax-paying power. The so-called indexes are to be based upon statistics of imports and exports, budget receipts and expenditures, railroad traffic, money value of consumption within Germany, of sugar, tobacco, beer and alcohol, population, coal consumption per capita and so on. This is supposed to be the extent of the demand upon the ordinary revenues for reparations with the exception of a "transport tax" yielding from 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 gold marks annually which is permanently pledged for reparations payments.

According to a bulletin issued upon this subject by the National City Bank of New York, the total of these various sums, otherwise 1,250,000,000 gold marks from the budget revenues, 660,000,000 from the railroad bonds, 300,000,000 gold marks from the industrial bonds, 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 from the transportation tax will amount to approximately 2,500,000,000 gold marks, which is the total sum fixed for the "standard" annual payment on the reparations account. Expressed in U. S. gold currency, this will be approximately $600,000,000—by far the largest sum of money ever attempted as an annual payment from one country to another.

Just how Germany will make up this enormous sum of money is difficult to understand at this time. It presupposes a rapid return to prosperity not only in Germany proper, but all over Europe, and this presupposes, in turn, a return of public confidence and a will to work and achieve in Germany as well as elsewhere. An understanding of this vital point explains the demands of the bankers, especially those of the United States, that all infringements upon Germany's sovereignty be relinquished and that the country be given a chance to recover.

Principles And The Russian Church

THE honor of the Peking Government, in a sense, is bound up in the question of Russian Church property in China and all eyes are turned in the direction of the capital to see if the Chinese Government eventually will be a party to spoliation of an institution that should not be dragged into Sino-Russian politics. In this connection, Dr. Gilbert Reid contributes an analytical study of the question to the International Journal. According to the laws and regulations of China, in the purchase of property by different Christian missions, it must be stated that it is the public property of the local church, and not the property of any foreigner, still less the property of any foreign Government. This is the rule that applies to all missions in Peking outside of the Legation area, and in China outside the foreign concessions of the treaty ports. The Russian Mission in the north-east section of Peking first received its present site from the Emperor Kang-hsi, and the gift was to Russian Christians, and not to the Czarist Government. About this, for over two hundred years, there has been no dispute. Why should there be a change now, contrary to the spirit of civil law?

According to Article XII of the Agreement between China and Soviet Russia, the rights of extraterritoriality and consular jurisdiction in China are relinquished by the Soviet Government. This is the great advantage derived by China from the Agreement. Henceforth all Russians living in China, whether missionaries, merchants or teachers, come under the jurisdiction of Chinese laws, and such Russians in the rights which they receive are henceforth not limited to the treaty ports but may go and live wherever the Chinese go and live. The only difference is in that of naturalisation. Formerly, in the Russian Church in China, there was a difference between those who were Russians and those who were Chinese. Now they all alike come under Chinese law, and should alike receive Chinese protection. If there is any grievance, these Russians must appeal to Chinese authorities and cannot, as before, rely on help from the Russian Government.

According to Article VI of the Agreement, the two Governments "mutually pledge themselves not to permit within their respective territories the existence or activities of any organisations or groups whose aim is to struggle by acts of violence against the Governments of either Contracting Party. The Governments further pledge themselves not to engage in propaganda directed against the political and social systems of either Contracting Party." Thus it is that whatever system Soviet Russia carries out within the limits of Russia is no concern of China. Likewise Soviet Russia should not carry on any propaganda against the form of Government pleasing to China. As to the Russian Christian Mission, it has not been subject to the political changes taking place in Russia. Still more now that the Mission, like all Russians, comes under Chinese law should it be free from the political designs and schemes which prevail in Russia. Neither should the Russian Church property in China be handed over to the Soviet State, contrary to existing Chinese laws and regulations. Whether the Soviet Government protects or not the Russian Church in Russia is its own affair. What happens to the Russian Church in China is the sole affair of the Chinese Government and is no concern of Soviet Russia. It is for the Chinese Government to accord protection and for the Soviet Government to refrain from acts of opposition. In this way Article VI will be duly carried out, argues Dr. Reid. The logic of his contention is irresistible.

The Debt To Bertillon

WHILST the successful sending by wire of finger-prints from New York to Chicago on the opening day of this month, as mentioned in the cable published today, unquestionably constitutes one of the greatest advances made in criminal detection in many years, and whilst it needs little imagination to see that one of the biggest factors will be a saving of time which will help the police, in view of the reluctance of magistrates to hold suspects more than forty-eight hours, we must not overlook the contribution to society by the man who first discovered the possibilities of the human finger-print. Whilst we may marvel at the range of human inventive genius which renders it possible for the finger-prints of men with records to be conveyed by wire in a few minutes over a great distance, we can, at the same time, do well to remind ourselves that some of the most important contributions to humanity were made during the nineteenth century. Anthropometry was the name given by the French savant, Alphonse Bertillon, to a system of identification depending on the unchanging character of certain measurements of parts of the human frame. He found by patient inquiry that several physical features and the dimensions of certain bones or bony structures in the body remain practically constant during adult life. He concluded from this that when these measurements were made and recorded systematically, every single individual would be found to be perfectly distinguishable from others. The system was soon adapted to police methods, as the immense value of being able to fix a person's identity was fully realised, both in preventing false personation and in bringing home to anyone charged with an offence his responsibility for previous wrongdoing.

Anthropometry, however, gradually fell into disfavor, and it has been generally supplanted by the superior system of finger-prints. Bertillonage exhibited certain defects which were first brought to light in Bengal. The objections raised were (1) the costliness of the instruments employed and their liability to get out of order; (2) the need for specially instructed measurers, men of superior education; (3) the errors that frequently crept in when carrying out the processes and were all but irremediable. Measures inaccurately taken, or wrongly read off, could seldom, if ever, be corrected, and these persistent errors defeated all chance of successful search. The process was slow, as it was necessary to repeat it three times so as to arrive at a mean result. In Bengal measurements were already abandoned by 1897, when the finger-print system was adopted throughout British India. Three years later England followed suit; and as the result of a fresh inquiry ordered by the Home Office, finger-prints were alone relied upon for identification. It would bring joy to the heart of Bertillon, were he alive today, to know that the system which he gave to the world has become incalculably more priceless with the invention of wireless and its application to finger-prints, among other things.

What people think of you usually depends on little things, but what people think of you is no little thing.

Hence, son, incline your ear unto me, and I will give you some intimate hints; they are little, but you would do well to read, learn, and inwardly digest them.

As to clothes, wear just what is expected of one in your circumstances. The height of good dressing is not to be noticed. What ever tends to attract attention is on the way to vulgarity.

Cultivate cleanliness. Keep your clothing clean, your skin clean, your nails clean, your teeth clean.

Avoid marked perfumes. The best perfume in the world is the kind that suggests soap; the worst, the kind that suggests you forgot the soap. And eschew jewelry.

Choose your crowd. Don't go with those who spend more than you can afford, drink what you don't want to drink, or talk the way you don't like. Don't criticize. Just drop out.

Don't be officious. Don't qualify in the popular art of minding other people's business. Don't gossipy.

Be gentle. The stronger the gentler. The more power you have, use it the more carefully.

Don't bluff. If you are going to hit a man, hit him and have done with it.

Don't hold a grudge. If the man is mean, it's too great a compliment to him to waste time and vitality hating him.

Train your voice. Speak low. When you see you are losing your temper, if you drop your voice about a third you will find you will retain command of yourself.

Don't mumble. Pronounce the consonants. Finish your sentences.

Don't argue. Discuss. The difference is, that in argument you are trying to outdo the other fellow; in discussion you are trying to get at the truth.

Be courteous. Practise at home. Get up when your wife enters the room. Be polite to your baby. Then it will come easier when you want to show off. Learn how to converse. One way is to be interested in what the other person is saying, instead of thinking, all the time he is talking, of what you are going to say when he is done.

Don't talk about yourself. Don't talk of your disease, your family, your babies, your servants, your troubles, your successes. Listen to Jones talk of his. That will make a hit with Jones. And what do you care?

Don't interrupt. Wait till the other person runs down before you begin to speak.

In general discussion, be the last to speak. Then you can utter the veriest platitude and it will sound grand.

The easiest way to get a reputation for being deep is to keep still. "Even a fool is counted wise when he holdeth his peace," said Solomon.

Break yourself of any unpleasant mannerisms, such as twisting your mouth, toying with your mustache, working with your eyebrows, twirling your thumbs, posing or squirming or drumming with your fingers.

All these things obstruct and belie your personality. And the art of pleasing consists in perfectly expressing yourself, simply, naturally and with ease.

Correspondence

"IS DR. SUN YAT-SEN MISJUDGED?"

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS.
Dear Sir: Without the least intention to prosecute an endless war of pen by discussing such irrelevances as the oldish seamen's strike in Hongkong and the unfortunate incident at a London assembly, I confine myself to the questions which I am challenged to answer, lest I should overstep the boundaries of logic and divert attention from the real point at issue.

The impertinency of your first question will become apparent when you consider the respective positions of Garibaldi and Dr. Sun. Dr. Sun is not a general, what if it is not a stretch of imagination to suppose that he could show the generalship and bravery of a soldier? Your ridicule as to his escape aboard a British gunboat, obviously made on the spur of the moment, is devoid of due deliberation. Instances are not wanting in history where emperors, kings, presidents, and generals fled in extremity as he fled when beset by danger. Reluctant to offend the sensibilities of the foreign guests in our midst, I refrain from citing historical facts.

I answer your question—Has Dr. Sun tried to steer clear of the revolutionary fanaticism?—in the affirmative. Observers of the Chinese politics must still remember the humane treatment accorded to the Imperial family at Peking and the Manchurian garrisons in the various provinces during the revolution of 1911, of which Dr. Sun is the author. Prompted by a wish to see the restoration of peace and to avoid further bloodshed, he magnanimously offered the office of Provisional President to Yuan Shih-kai, and moreover, he never in his life resorted to bomb-throwing as a revolutionary fanatic would have done. These are facts of history too emphatic and true to be refuted.

In view of the inaccuracy of the recent report concerning Dr. Sun's demise, the message from Colombo must be taken with a grain of salt. Unless future events prove that the two machine-guns and a large number of rifles and sixty tons of ammunition are intended for destruction of the innocent citizens in Kwangtung instead of suppression of banditry and piracy, your attempt to rouse the antipathy of the world against Dr. Sun and his regime can hardly produce the desired effect. The business of killing is abominable. By the way, what do you mean by publishing on February 20, 1924, an editorial entitled "Benevolent Neutrality Or The Alternative" with the 4th paragraph reading: "Another form of intervention or interference would be that of financing and arming and actively assisting one of the factions now contending for power. This might be General Chang Tso-lin of Mukden. General Wu Pei-fu and the Chihli Party or it might be Dr. Sun Yat-sen and his branch of the Kuomintang Party at Canton. A policy such as this would be similar to the present policy of the United States in respect to Mexico." Is that your act of friendship? Just imagine what gruesome sights of war would have been enacted and what a damage done to the Chinese and foreign trade and the flourishing commerce of the United States of America in China, had your venomous suggestions been acted upon?

By refusing to construe "unwavering faith in republicanism" as meaning "firm belief in government of the people, by the people, for the people" and dwelling upon the imaginary war-chest, you lead one's imagination to Sergeant Busfus, Mrs. Bardell's counsel, who laid much emphasis upon chop, tomato sauce, and warming-pan whom he was addressing the jury against Mr. Pickwick.

Thanking you in anticipation for your kindness of publishing this letter.

W. C. PIEN.

When The Sun Shines

When the sun shines I am an optimist. When it rains, or clouds lower, and the unfriendly wind blows, and the rosebush wrings its hands, and the air chills my bones, I am a pessimist.

But when it blows and blusters and that confounded peachtree bangs against the window don't ask me. I hate you, and everybody, even unto my own gizzard.

When the sun shines I love children. When the sun shines I love children. When the sun shines I love children.

keep, to hear them shout, to catch the foam of their exuberance. But if it's cloudy, why, drat 'em! Why don't people keep their young ones in cages, like the wild animals they are? They annoy me. They saw my nerves. Take them away before I commit something.

When the sun shines I am a believer. I am almost a Christian Scientist. There is no evil. Good is all. Women are true. Men are loyal. The world is growing better. But on a muggy, soggy, stinky, foggy day it's different. Then I doubt. I believe nothing, nobody, nowhere. Women are deceitful baggages. Men are worse. The world is bumping along toward the bowwows.

When the sun shines I love to talk. Come, we will sit upon this pleasant garden seat and I will discourse with endless flux of euphemistic trope, or cabbages and kings. But on a dark day, don't speak to me. I have a dumb devil. I would moan and sit alone, and think, and hate my thoughts, and groan anon.

When the sun shines I open the door to peddlers, and listen as they cry up the wares they would sell me. I even subscribe for that beautiful magazine. The Ladies' Nuisance. But on bad days let none come to my door. The dog is unchained, and hungry. I gibe at beggars and send them away. I will not endure the man who wants me just to look at the prospectus of The Lives of the Poets.

When the sun shines I am pretty well. I thank you. When it rains my joints ache. I feel my old complaint. I know my liver has turned over. Nothing inside me is working except the spleen and the bile duct.

When the sun shines I am a Universalist. When it is a nasty day I am a Calvinist.

When the sun shines I am a pacifist. When it does not shine I am for war.

When the sun shines I am sixteen. When it is murky I am a hundred and sixteen.

The Philosophy Of Common Things

BY GARRETT P. SERVICE

"Kindly settle a raging dispute. A claims that a table resting on the floor is in a state of equilibrium because the force of gravity, acting downward, is equal to the upward resistance of the floor; B claims that the table is in a state of equilibrium because the force of gravity and the force (pressure) of the floor, acting upwards, are equal.

"Does the floor offer resistance, or does it exert a pressure?"

I have no fondness for discussions that tend toward metaphysical distinctions, antithetical definitions, or wordplayings. But while your "raging dispute" may seem, at first sight, to be of that kind, yet it involves a real distinction in the meanings of two much-used terms, and is worth serious consideration.

To put the question a little more clearly before the mind's eye, let us slightly change the arrangement of the objects concerned. For a table resting on the floor substitute a weight resting on the table. This in no way changes the relations of the forces in operation. Gravity pulls downward upon the weight, and the table opposes its fall, thus thwarting the effort of gravity.

Gravity is a force tending to produce motion, but the motion being arrested, pressure takes its place. In withstanding the pressure the table exercises resistance. Resistance, then, is a force which, unlike gravity, tends to stop motion. Here we have a real and fundamental distinction of meaning.

It is true that we do speak of counterbalancing pressure in such cases, but that is only a way to clarify the idea of reaction. Action and reaction, we say, are equal. We sometimes carry this out with such assertions as that a sail presses against the wind with the same force with which the wind presses against the sail. Mathematically this is true; yet there always remains a distinction in our minds between the pressure of the wind and the resistance of the sail; a distinction that has to be retained for clearness of thinking.

The nature of the distinction may be made a little more evident by returning to the case of the weight resting on the table. Imagine the table to be suddenly removed, or destroyed, leaving the weight unsupported. Gravity is a continuous force, always producing motion unless it is effectually opposed, and so, as soon as the resistance of the table is removed, the weight begins to fall. Thus the pressure instantly reproduces motion, or translates itself into motion.

Next, imagine the weight destroyed while the table remains in position. Except for a slight recovery through internal elasticity from any deformation that the pressure may have produced in its surface, no motion of the table results from the removal of the weight. Its resistance ceases because there is no longer anything to resist. Does not this contrast plainly indicate an essential difference between "pressure" and "resistance"?

There is equivalence of effect, without identity of agent. Resistance is a sleeping force only called into exertion by an active force moving against it.

Some ambiguity may appear in the postulate that water presses upward and sideways as well as downward, but this statement only means that the internal effects of the force of gravity on the water are, on account of the mobility of the liquid, distributed equally in all directions. The upward pressure ceases at the surface of the water because there an equilibrium is attained. Put a cork at the bottom of a vessel of water, and it shoots to the top, being pushed up by the transmitted force of gravity, but above the surface of equilibrium there is no pressure on the cork.

Such discussions have great educative value, because they serve to fix the attention upon the causes and methods of operation concealed behind the phenomena of nature, promote original thinking, and train the reasoning powers. But they should not be run into disputes about things that have no discoverable relations with reality.

DRESS

A Popular French Dancer Displays the Charm of Bright Colored Gloves.

When Mistinguett, that popular comedienne and dancer of France, made her first appearance in America she wore colored gloves. Blue gloves to match a blue hat—red gloves to match a red parasol.

This seemed to some observers tremendously significant. Regarding the radiant Mistinguett on the first night of her American appearance it seemed to some, though neutral and dull gloves would soon be entirely out of fashion. Yet the fact is that Mistinguett's flare for colored gloves will hardly turn the tide of glove fashions.

The significant thing is that those bright colored gloves would hardly have seemed so smart were it not that we and all the world that follows the fashion born in France were wearing gloves of orange and fairly colorful species already. Women don't wear gloves so much as they did fifteen years ago, but when they do wear them they wear gloves that are more distinctive.

One French fashion writer bursts forth thus extravagantly: "The inconceivable fertility of the imagination of the glove manufacturers is never exhausted and every day appear new gloves and gloves never seen before." Among the gloves shown are some of chestnut colored kid with beige linings, several showing smart combinations of black and white and a pair of gray kid with turned-back cuffs of plaid in blue, black and yellow.

There are some smart American women who will have none of these rather ornate gloves. They cling to the simplest sort of light gray or beige gloves. Quite recently there seems to be less liking for the pure white gloves that was revived to a certain extent earlier in the season.

But there are some women who admire gloves of colorful distinction. The sketch shows a pair of black kid with bands of white stitched in red, blue and yellow, and two other gloves that depend on cuff lining and stitching for their charm.

NICKNAMES AND NICKNAMES.

The habit of using nicknames seems to run in certain families. And once you have acquired the habit of using nicknames you find it rather irksome to call any one from the dignified family doctor to the pet canary by his given name.

At a card party the other day a woman who weighed at least two hundred pounds, had turned fifty and wore enormous horn-rimmed glasses, answered when the hostess addressed "Peaches." Her name proved to be Julia, which seemed much more appropriate. "Peaches" addressed her hostess as "Birdie," and another guest of much the same build as "Peaches" was known as "Da-Da." These nicknames had long ago when their owners all went to school together and they are still used for the sake of "auld lang syne."

Undoubtedly it is natural for young folk to wish to improvise what they consider clever nicknames for each other and it is the role of the wise parent to show

Interesting new gloves. Those at the bottom are trimmed with rows of colored stitching. Interesting stitching and broad-edged cuff give character to the others.

Indulgence when their children come tramping back from school and college at holiday time all bearing strange and rather foolish sounding names. But the wise young woman puts away such nicknames as her years and weight increase—especially if she has been called "Peaches," "Babe," or "Cherub."

Chefoo Hit By Heavy Rain, With Loss To Small Craft

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Chefoo July 23.—Chefoo has had its share of the storms which prevailed throughout North China last week. The rain, though not heavy, is persistent and is still continuing.

The new concrete bund has stood up well and shows no damage from the storm. Most of the small craft and bathing rafts along the sea front were washed away and few have been recovered.

The American Asiatic Squadron have now nearly all left for Tientsin, where they will remain for a few days. They are expected to return to Chefoo again on July 25, after which a short manoeuvre will be made along the coast. The U. S. Naval transport Argonne is due on July 24 bringing new officers to relieve those returning home.

A new road from Chefoo to Fu San Hsien has been opened under Chinese management as an extension of the Chefoo-Weihsien motor road. A regular carriage service has been organised.

The hair net and lace industries continue at low ebb. Many Chinese firms unable to stand the strain have been forced into liquidation. A slight demand for pongees had arisen for Autumn shipment, but the market in this is again quiet.

The volunteer fire brigade has recently been reorganised and is now composed of five companies, each with three foreigners and seven or eight Chinese firemen. Chemical engines have been purchased and the brigade is well equipped on every way.

Mr. Sun Tan-lin, the former Minister of the Interior, has arrived in Chefoo to transact business in connection with the new Five Provinces Bank to be organised under the auspices of Marshal Wu Pei-fu.

Shameen Strikers
Are Given Support
By Local Bodies

According to an article appearing in yesterday's Min Kuo Pao, a translation of which is on file at police headquarters, a number of Chinese organisations in Shanghai have voted to express their full support of the Shameen strikers who walked out in protest against a series of regulations adopted by the Shameen Municipal Council in order to check crime and outrages in Shameen.

The Woo-Hai Laborers and Merchants' Society, the Young Men's Mutual Assistance Corps, and the Zoong Hal Merchants, Laborers and Students' Society, says the Min Kuo Pao, are sending messages to Dr. Sun Yat-sen and Minister of Foreign Affairs Wu, of the Canton Government, urging them to take action to support the strikers and to obtain the abolition of the regulations of the Shameen Municipal Council.
